

PETER WEAVING

Disco takes a dive

These students with special needs were happy to take the plunge at an underwater-themed disco last week. The event was held at the new Parade College campus in Preston. Twenty-five schoolchildren and their carers came from three northern suburbs schools for the party, organised by Parade's community action team. Parade College pupils organised the party activities, decorations and musical performances. The pupils pictured are from Merriang Special Development School and the Northern School for Autism. The disco is one of several events held each year.